Computer Hardware

To suit the diverse needs of the industry, almost all of our relevant practice areas have been involved in serving our computer hardware clients.

Beyond intellectual property issues, we have significant involvement in export control and regulatory compliance issues, employment and immigration, trade secrets, antitrust, government contracts, and corporate transactions. We also have significant experience with unfair trade issues under Section 337 of the International Trade Commission.

Our attorneys serve not only computer hardware clients, but also represent companies in other industries that have business issues connected to the computer industry.
