Mark A. Black

Mark Black is an associate in the Washington office of Steptoe & Johnson LLP, where he is a member of the Litigation Department.

Mr. Black regularly represents insurance companies in complex insurance coverage disputes before federal and state courts and arbitration panels. He has represented clients in suits involving coverage for losses associated with financial products, environmental contamination, toxic torts, products liability, advertising injury, and other types of claims under liability and first-party insurance policies.

In addition to experience with insurance coverage disputes, Mr. Black has represented clients in civil lawsuits including arbitration vacatur proceedings and contract disputes. He has also worked with clients to resolve general commercial disputes prior to litigation.
