ACTIVISION BLIZZARD, INC.,
ACTIVISION PUBLISHING, INC., and
MAJOR LEAGUE GAMING CORP.

Defendants.

C.A. No. 2:17-cv-08644

JURY TRIAL DEMANDED

COMPLAINT

Plaintiff AM General LLC (“AM General”) states the following for its Complaint against Defendants Activision Blizzard, Inc., Activision Publishing, Inc., and Major League Gaming Corp. (collectively, “Defendants”).

INTRODUCTION

Plaintiff AM General LLC (“AM General”) makes the HUMVEE®-branded vehicle and owns registrations for the HUMVEE® and HMMWV® marks and the distinctive elements that comprise the AM General Trade Dress. Wrongfully leveraging the goodwill and reputation AM General has developed in these marks, Defendants have used and continue to use AM General’s trademarks and trade dress in advertising and promotion of their Call of Duty® video game franchise; have featured and continue to feature AM General’s trademarks and vehicles bearing the distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress prominently in their video games; and have caused and continue to cause the manufacture and sale of collateral toys and books to further derive wrongful profits from AM General's intellectual property and to further promote Defendants' infringing video games. Defendants' video games have been successful but only at the expense of AM General and consumers who are deceived into believing that AM General licenses the games or is somehow connected with or involved in the creation of the games. Defendants have reaped billions of dollars in revenues from their wrongful acts and, in the process, have irreparably harmed AM General by causing significant confusion, expressly misleading the consuming public, and diluting the goodwill and reputation of AM General's famous marks.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

A. AM General's Trademarks and Trade Dress

14. AM General designs, engineers, manufactures, supplies, and supports specialized vehicles for military and commercial customers. It is best known today for its global leadership in the design and production of, and support for, the High Mobility Multipurpose Wheeled Vehicle ("HMMWV"), which is also known as the "HUMVEE" and is widely recognized as the most versatile, dependable, and mobile light tactical wheeled vehicle in the world. Photographs of exemplary HUMVEE®-branded vehicles are reproduced as Figures 1–4 below:

15. AM General has successfully developed and produced more than 1.5 million vehicles, including more than 278,000 HUMVEE[®]-branded vehicles. HUMVEE[®]-branded vehicles have been in service for more than 30 years with the United States Armed Forces and with over 50 foreign countries.

16. For many decades, AM General has devoted, and continues to devote, substantial time, effort, and resources in the development and design of HUMVEE[®]-branded vehicles and to the goodwill and reputation of the HUMVEE[®] and HMMWV[®] brands, including the distinctive trade dress associated with HUMVEE[®]-branded vehicles.

17. AM General is the owner of all rights, title, and interest in numerous trademarks and trade dress. Of particular relevance to this action, AM General is the owner of United States Trademark Reg. No. 1,697,530, which covers the HUMVEE[®] mark for trucks. A true and accurate copy of Reg. No. 1,697,530 is attached hereto as Exhibit 1. As reflected in Exhibit 1, the HUMVEE[®] mark for trucks was first used in commerce at least as early as April 1983. The HUMVEE[®] mark is incontestable, which means that it is “conclusive evidence” of AM General’s ownership of the mark, of the validity of the mark, and of AM General’s “exclusive right” to use the mark in commerce for trucks. See 15 U.S.C. § 1115(b).

18. AM General is also the owner of United States Trademark Reg. No. 2,305,256, which covers the HUMVEE[®] mark for toys. A true and accurate copy of Reg. No. 2,305,256 is attached hereto as Exhibit 2. As reflected in Exhibit 2, the HUMVEE[®] mark for toys was first used in commerce at least as early as June 1997. The HUMVEE[®] mark is incontestable, which means that it is “conclusive evidence” of AM General’s ownership of the mark, of the validity of the mark, and of AM General’s “exclusive right” to use the mark in commerce for toys. See 15 U.S.C. § 1115(b).

19. AM General is also the owner of United States Trademark Reg. No. 3,026,594, which covers the HMMWV[®] mark for vehicles. A true and accurate copy of Reg. No. 3,026,594 is attached hereto as Exhibit 3. As reflected in Exhibit 3, the HMMWV[®] mark was first used in commerce at least as early as December 13, 1986. The HMMWV[®] mark is incontestable, which means that it is “conclusive evidence” of AM General’s ownership of the mark, of the validity of the mark, and of AM General’s “exclusive right” to use the mark in commerce for vehicles. See 15 U.S.C. § 1115(b).

20. In addition, AM General’s HUMVEE[®]-branded vehicles bear certain distinctive elements, which individually and collectively comprise the “AM General Trade Dress.” As shown in Figures 1–4, above, the AM General Trade Dress includes the overall shape of the vehicle, an X design on the lower portion of the vehicle’s doors (in certain configurations), a slanted upper rear portion of the vehicle (in certain configurations), side mirror mounts attached to each side of the vehicle adjacent to the vehicle windshield (not to the vehicle’s doors), a windshield that is bisected by a metal bar and does not have lights above it, windshield wipers attached to the top of the front windows, rectangular doors, a blackout headlight in the left front hood recess, and/or seven vertical ovals comprising the front grille. See 15 U.S.C. § 1115(b).

21. AM General has registered certain elements of the AM General Trade Dress on the Principal Register of the United States Patent and Trademark Office. Specifically, AM General is the owner of Reg. No. 5,107,327 (the “Registered AM General Trade Dress”) for motor vehicles and toy vehicles. Figure 5, below, depicts the Registered AM General Trade Dress, which consists of “a three-dimensional configuration of an X design on the lower portion of two vehicle doors, a slanted upper rear portion of a vehicle and side mirror mounts attached to each side of a vehicle adjacent to the windshield.” A true and accurate copy of Reg. No. 5,107,327 is attached hereto as Exhibit 4. As reflected in Exhibit 4, the Registered AM General Trade Dress was first used in commerce for vehicles at least as early as April 1983 and for toys at least as early as December 31, 1999. This registration is “prima facie evidence” of AM General’s ownership of the mark, of the validity of the mark, and of AM General’s “exclusive right” to use the mark in commerce for vehicles and toys. See 15 U.S.C. § 1115(b).

22. The AM General Trade Dress (including but not limited to the Registered AM General Trade Dress) is distinctive and is not functional. The elements of the AM General Trade Dress (including but not limited to the Registered AM General Trade Dress) serve to allow consumers to easily recognize HUMVEE®-branded vehicles and toys bearing the AM General Trade Dress and to distinguish the source of HUMVEE®-branded vehicles and toys bearing the AM General Trade Dress from the source of vehicles and toys manufactured by others.

23. The AM General Trade Dress has been held to be valid and well-known and was so held long before the unlawful acts giving rise to this action. For example, in General Motors Corp. & AM General, LLC v. Lanard Toys, Inc., the Sixth Circuit affirmed a summary judgment ruling that the AM General Trade Dress was valid and non-functional as a matter of law. General Motors Corp. & AM General, LLC v. Lanard Toys, Inc., 468 F.3d 405, 417 (6th Cir. 2006).

24. Based on extensive use, promotion, and sales, the AM General Trade Dress is distinctive and enjoys secondary meaning among consumers as a device that identifies and distinguishes AM General, or a single anonymous source, as the source of HUMVEE®-branded vehicles bearing the AM General Trade Dress. For example, the AM General Trade Dress has been described as “iconic,” “famous,” and “world renowned.” See Exhibits 5–10.

25. Since at least as early as the 1990s, AM General has licensed others to use the HUMVEE® mark and/or the AM General Trade Dress on or in connection with a wide variety of products, which have been sold to millions of consumers throughout the United States.

26. For example, AM General granted a license to Infogrames Inc. to use the HUMVEE® mark and the AM General Trade Dress in connection with the video game HUMVEE® Assault™.

27. AM General granted a license to Novalogic, Inc. to use the HUMVEE® mark in connection with the video game Delta Force - Black Hawk Down™.

28. AM General granted a license to The Codemasters Software Company, Ltd. to use the HUMVEE® mark and the AM General Trade Dress in connection with the video game Operation Flashpoint®: Red River®.

29. AM General granted a license to THQ Inc. to use the HUMVEE® mark and the AM General Trade Dress in connection with the video game Homefront® and in promotional and other materials related to the Homefront® video game.

30. AM General granted a license to Maisto International Inc. to use the HUMVEE® mark and the AM General Trade Dress in connection with scale vehicle models.

31. AM General granted a license to Mattel to use the HUMVEE® mark and the AM General Trade Dress in connection with toys of specified scales.

32. Consumers have come to expect that goods bearing the HUMVEE® marks, the HMMWV® mark, and/or distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress originate from and/or are authorized, licensed, or approved by AM General and were so authorized, licensed, or approved long before the unlawful conduct that forms the basis for this action. AM General's HUMVEE® and HMMWV® marks and the AM General Trade Dress are famous to the general purchasing public in the United States and were famous long before the unlawful conduct that forms the basis for this action.

B. Defendants' Unlawful Conduct

1. Defendants' Unauthorized Use of HUMVEE® and HMMWV® Marks and the AM General Trade Dress in Connection with Infringing Video Games

33. Beginning after AM General's first use in commerce of the HUMVEE® and HMMWV® marks and the AM General Trade Dress (including but not limited to the Registered AM General Trade Dress), and seeking to profit from the strength of such marks and dress and the success of goods bearing such marks and/or dress, Defendants have (directly and/or contributorily) produced, manufactured, caused to be manufactured, sold, offered for sale, distributed, and/or induced others to use—and continue to produce, manufacture, cause to be manufactured, sell, offer for sale, distribute, and/or induce others to use—products, including video games and/or other content and materials, that incorporate, use, and prominently rely upon the AM General Trade Dress and that infringe and continue to infringe the HUMVEE® and HMMWV® marks (the “Infringing Products”). Such Infringing Products include but are not limited to the following video games:

- Call of Duty®: Modern Warfare® 2;
- Call of Duty®: Modern Warfare® 3;
- Call of Duty® 4: Modern Warfare®;
- Call of Duty®: Modern Warfare® Remastered;
- Call of Duty® Modern Warfare®: Mobilized;
- Call of Duty®: Black Ops II;
- Call of Duty®: Ghosts; and
- Call of Duty®: Heroes.

True and accurate images of a sample of Defendants’ Infringing Products and Defendants’ unauthorized use of the AM General Trade Dress and marks to promote these Infringing Products are attached hereto as Exhibit 11.

34. Defendants’ wrongful use of AM General’s intellectual property, including the AM General Trade Dress and the HUMVEE® and HMMWV® marks, in the Call of Duty® franchise is pervasive, plays a significant role in the gameplay of the Infringing Products, and is a key selling feature of the games.

35. For example, in Call of Duty[®]: Modern Warfare[®] 2, multiple in-game missions and multiplayer levels include depictions of vehicles bearing the (or substantially similar) distinctive design elements of the AM General Trade Dress (“Infringing Vehicles”). In some instances, the game player is able to (and even required to in order to progress in the game) climb onto the Infringing Vehicles and climb into (viewing the interior) and ride in the Infringing Vehicles while controlling and firing a weapon on the vehicle. See, e.g., Exhibit 11 at 7–18; Exhibit 12. In others, the player is tasked with manning a weapon from a helicopter to protect Infringing Vehicles that are seen driving on the ground below. At various points in the game, the Infringing Vehicles are explicitly and misleadingly identified using AM General’s marks as, e.g., “HUMVEE 01 M1026 HMMWV.” In other instances, the characters explicitly and misleadingly refer to the Infringing Vehicles as the “Humvee,” including dialog that states “We’re leaving on Hunter Three’s Humvee, over.” There are also Infringing Vehicles depicted in miniature or toy configurations in the game. The Infringing Vehicles depicted include distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress, including its overall shape, X design on the lower portion of the vehicle’s doors, slanted upper rear portion, side mirror mounts attached to each side of the vehicle adjacent to the vehicle windshield (not to the vehicle’s doors), a windshield that is bisected by a metal bar and does not have lights above it, windshield wipers attached to the top of the front windows, rectangular doors, and seven vertical ovals comprising the front grille. Exhibit 11 at 7–18.

36. Figures 6–11, below, are screenshots of Call of Duty[®]: Modern Warfare[®] 2 gameplay depicting exemplary unauthorized uses of the HUMVEE[®] and HMMWV[®] marks and the AM General Trade Dress.

37. In Call of Duty®: Modern Warfare® 3, Infringing Vehicles are central to the gameplay and are a key selling feature of the game. For example, characters are seen climbing out of an overturned Infringing Vehicle that is on fire. In other scenes, the characters explicitly and misleadingly refer to Infringing Vehicles as the “Humvee,” including dialog that states “Do not fire on the Humvees, those are our guys,” “Get Volk in the Humvee, let’s go!,” “One of the humvees has just been hit,” and “Get a javelin from the Humvee and finish off those tanks.” The Infringing Vehicles depicted include distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress, including its overall shape, X design on the lower portion of the vehicle’s doors, side mirror mounts attached to each side of the vehicle adjacent to the vehicle windshield (not to the vehicle’s doors), a windshield that is bisected by a metal bar and does not have lights above it, windshield wipers attached to the top of the front windows, rectangular doors, and seven vertical ovals comprising the front grille. Exhibit 11 at 21–25.

38. In Call of Duty® 4: Modern Warfare, multiple in-game missions and multiplayer levels include depictions of Infringing Vehicles. In some instances, the game player is able to climb onto the Infringing Vehicles and climb into and ride inside the Infringing Vehicles while controlling a weapon on the vehicle. In others, the player is tasked with manning a weapon from a helicopter to protect Infringing Vehicles that are seen driving on the ground below. The Infringing Vehicles depicted include distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress, including its overall shape, X design on the lower portion of the vehicle’s doors, slanted upper rear portion, side mirror mounts attached to each side of the vehicle adjacent to the vehicle windshield (not to the vehicle’s doors), a windshield that is bisected by a metal bar and does not have lights above it, windshield wipers attached to the top of the front windows, rectangular doors, and seven vertical ovals comprising the front grille. Exhibit 11 at 2–6.

39. In Call of Duty®: Modern Warfare® Remastered, multiple in-game missions and multiplayer levels include depictions of Infringing Vehicles. In some instances, the game player is able to climb onto the Infringing Vehicles. The Infringing Vehicles depicted include distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress, including its overall shape, slanted upper rear portion, side mirror mounts attached to each side of the vehicle adjacent to the vehicle windshield (not to the vehicle's doors), a windshield that is bisected by a metal bar and does not have lights above it, windshield wipers attached to the top of the front windows, rectangular doors, and seven vertical ovals comprising the front grille. Exhibit 11 at 34–35.

40. In Call of Duty®: Black Ops II, players see Infringing Vehicles, exterior and interior, as part of a mission, and in some instances see characters exit the Infringing Vehicles. The Infringing Vehicles depicted include distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress, including its overall shape, X design on the lower portion of the vehicle's doors, slanted upper rear portion, side mirror mounts attached to each side of the vehicle adjacent to the vehicle windshield (not to the vehicle's doors), a windshield that is bisected by a metal bar and does not have lights above it, windshield wipers attached to the top of the front windows, rectangular doors, a blackout headlight in the left front hood recess, and seven vertical ovals comprising the front grille. Exhibit 11 at 26–29.

41. In Call of Duty®: Ghosts, players are able to see Infringing Vehicles, maneuver around them, and climb on them. The Infringing Vehicles depicted include distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress, including its overall shape, slanted upper rear portion, side mirror mounts attached to each side of the vehicle adjacent to the vehicle windshield (not to the vehicle's doors), a windshield that is bisected by a metal bar and does not have lights above it, windshield wipers attached to the top of the front windows, rectangular doors, a blackout headlight in the left front hood recess, and seven vertical ovals comprising the front grille. Exhibit 11 at 30–32.

42. In Call of Duty® Modern Warfare®: Mobilized, players can approach an Infringing Vehicle and control a weapon on the top of an Infringing Vehicle. Exhibit 11 at 19–20. The Infringing Vehicles depicted include distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress, including its overall shape, slanted upper rear portion, side mirror mounts attached to each side of the vehicle adjacent to the vehicle windshield (not to the vehicle’s doors), a windshield that is bisected by a metal bar and does not have lights above it, windshield wipers attached to the top of the front windows, rectangular doors, a blackout headlight in the left front hood recess, and seven vertical ovals comprising the front grille. Exhibit 11 at 19–20.

43. In Call of Duty®: Heroes, Infringing Vehicles are seen driving along roads near the player’s base. The Infringing Vehicles depicted include distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress, including its overall shape. Exhibit 11 at 33.

44. Figures 12–13, below, are screenshots depicting exemplary Infringing Vehicles in the Infringing Products, which have been annotated to call out Defendants’ unauthorized use of certain distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress.

45. Figure 12 is exemplary of Defendants’ wrongful use of AM General Trade Dress, including the vehicle’s overall shape, which is a distinctive element of the AM General Trade Dress. Figure 12A includes a red annotation calling out the depicted windshield that is bisected by a metal bar and does not have lights above it, which are distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress. Figure 12B includes a red annotation calling out the depicted seven vertical ovals comprising the front grille, which is a distinctive element of the AM General Trade Dress. Figure 12C includes a red annotation calling out the depicted side mirror mounts attached to each side of a vehicle adjacent to the vehicle windshield (not to the vehicle’s doors), which are distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress. 46. Upon information and belief, Defendants also license, distribute, and/or provide access to the Infringing Video Games through subscription services. For example, in 2011 Defendants Activision Blizzard, Inc. and Activision Publishing, Inc. launched Call of Duty[®]: Elite, an online subscription-based service offering additional multiplayer content. Premium members of the Call of Duty[®]: Elite service were charged $50 per year for the service.

2. Defendants' Unauthorized Use of the AM General Trade Dress in Connection with Advertising and Promotion of Infringing Video Games

47. Without AM General's permission, in order to promote certain of Defendants' Infringing Products, in order to advertise the pervasive depiction of Infringing Vehicles in Defendants' Infringing Products, and in a manner that explicitly misleads consumers into believing that AM General or the maker of HUMVEE[®]-branded vehicles (if unknown) sponsors or supports Defendants' Infringing Products, Defendants have prominently depicted vehicles bearing the distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress in advertising and marketing materials. True and accurate copies of images taken from Defendants' advertising materials are attached as Exhibit 13.

48. For example, video trailers used to promote the Call of Duty[®] video games prominently feature depictions of vehicles bearing distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress. Exhibit 13 at 2–11.

The Infringing Vehicles depicted include distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress, including its overall shape, X design on the lower portion of the vehicle’s doors, slanted upper rear portion, side mirror mounts attached to each side of the vehicle adjacent to the vehicle windshield (not to the vehicle’s doors), a windshield that is bisected by a metal bar and does not have lights above it, windshield wipers attached to the top of the front windows, and seven vertical ovals comprising the front grille. Exhibit 13 at 2–9.

52. In the “Launch Trailer” for Call of Duty®: Modern Warfare® 3, Infringing Vehicles are shown on a bridge before they are blown up. The Infringing Vehicles depicted include distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress, including its overall shape, side mirror mounts attached to each side of a vehicle adjacent to the vehicle windshield (not to the vehicle’s doors), and seven vertical ovals comprising the front grille. See, e.g., Exhibit 13 at 10–11.

Call of Duty MW3, <https://www.callofduty.com/mw3> (last visited Nov.6, 2017).

53. Upon information and belief, Defendants have used actual HUMVEE[®]-branded vehicles bearing the AM General Trade Dress to promote Defendants' Infringing Products, to advertise the pervasive, wrongful use of the HUMVEE[®] and HMMWV[®] marks and the AM General Trade Dress in Call of Duty[®] franchise games, and to expressly mislead consumers to believe AM General or the maker of HUMVEE[®]-branded vehicles (even if unknown) sponsors, licenses or otherwise approves Defendants' Infringing Products and/or that AM General or the maker of HUMVEE[®]-branded vehicles worked with or was connected with or involved in the production of the Infringing Products by way of, for example, providing technical assistance or consulting with regard to how HUMVEE[®]-branded vehicles perform in battle. For example, Defendants promoted Call of Duty[®]: Black Ops by driving HUMVEE[®]-branded vehicles bearing the AM General Trade Dress, which had been painted so as to display the Call of Duty[®]: Black Ops logo. Exhibit 13 at 12–13.

3. Defendants' Unauthorized Use of the AM General Trade Dress in Connection with MegaBlocs Toys

54. Upon information and belief, one or more of Defendants arranged for the manufacture, distribution, and sale of toy vehicles bearing the (or substantially similar) distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress. For example, in or around 2013 Defendants and MEGA Brands released a seven-toy series of Call of Duty® Collector Construction Sets to promote, advertise and further extract profits from the Call of Duty® franchise. One of the seven toys is the “Light Armor Firebase,” No. 06817, which includes a toy vehicle bearing the (or substantially similar) distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress. See, e.g., Exhibit 14 at 4.

55. And in or around 2016, Defendants and MEGA Brands released an eight-toy series of Call of Duty® Collector Construction Sets. One of the eight toys is the “Armored Vehicle Charge,” No. DPB57, which includes a toy vehicle bearing the (or substantially similar) distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress. See, e.g., Exhibit 14 at 2.

56. The packaging and instruction manuals accompanying the toys described in Paragraphs 54–55, above, bear the ACTIVISION® mark and the notice “©20[xx] Activision Publishing, Inc. ACTIVISION, and CALL OF DUTY are trademarks of Activision Publishing, Inc.” Exhibit 14 at 3, 5.

57. Upon information and belief, in connection with the manufacture, distribution and sale of the toys described in Paragraphs 54–55, above, one or more of Defendants falsely stated to MEGA Brands, Inc. and/or Mattel, Inc. that Activision had the authority to provide the rights to depict a vehicle bearing the distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress.

58. Upon information and belief, such use of the AM General Trade Dress in connection with the manufacture, distribution and sale of the toys described in Paragraphs 54–55, above, without license or authorization from AM General, further served to promote Defendants' Infringing Products, advertise the pervasive depiction of vehicles bearing the (or substantially similar) distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress in Defendants' Infringing Products and expressly mislead consumers to believe AM General or the maker of HUMVEE®-branded vehicles (if unknown) sponsors or supports Defendants' Infringing Products.

4. Defendants' Unauthorized Use of HUMVEE® mark and the AM General Trade Dress in Connection with BradyGames Strategy Guides

59. Upon information and belief, one or more of Defendants authorized BradyGames, Id Software, and/or Penguin Random House LLC to manufacture, publish, distribute, and sell strategy guides for Defendants' Infringing Products.

60. Upon information and belief, in 2011, Activision entered into a "Strategy Guide Publishing Agreement" with BradyGames for such strategy guides.

61. Such strategy guides pervasively and misleadingly use the HUMVEE® mark and depict vehicles bearing the (or substantially similar) distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress. For example, the Call of Duty®: Modern Warfare® 2 strategy guide describes the various acts, missions, and other details of Call of Duty®: Modern Warfare® 2. The Call of Duty®: Modern Warfare® 2 strategy guide prominently features Infringing Vehicles bearing the (or substantially similar) distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress, examples of which are shown in Exhibit 15 at 2–5.

62. For example, as shown in Figure 14 (see also Exhibit 15 at 3), below, the Call of Duty®: Modern Warfare® 2 strategy guide introduces Act 1 of the game on pages 10 and 11 and prominently depicts Infringing Vehicles bearing the (or substantially similar) distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress, including the overall shape of the vehicle, an X design on the lower portion of the vehicle's doors, a slanted upper rear portion of the vehicle, side mirror mounts attached to each side of a vehicle adjacent to the vehicle windshield (not to the vehicle's doors), a windshield that is bisected by a metal bar and does not have lights above it, windshield wipers attached to the top of the front windows, rectangular doors, a blackout headlight in the left front hood recess, and seven vertical ovals comprising the front grille.

63. The Call of Duty®: Modern Warfare® 2 strategy guide continues by describing engagements of Act 1, which prominently feature Infringing Vehicles as part of the gameplay. In doing so, the strategy guide makes pervasive use of the HUMVEE® mark. Exhibit 15 at 2–4. For example on page 18 (Exhibit 15 at 4), “Engagement 2,” is introduced as follows:

Once the militants begin to fall back, proceed up the stairs to the bridge and wait for your Humvee to roll up. Then hop in the back. Don’t run in front of it—you can get squashed!

Similarly, on page 18 (Exhibit 15 at 4), “Engagement 3” is introduced as follows:

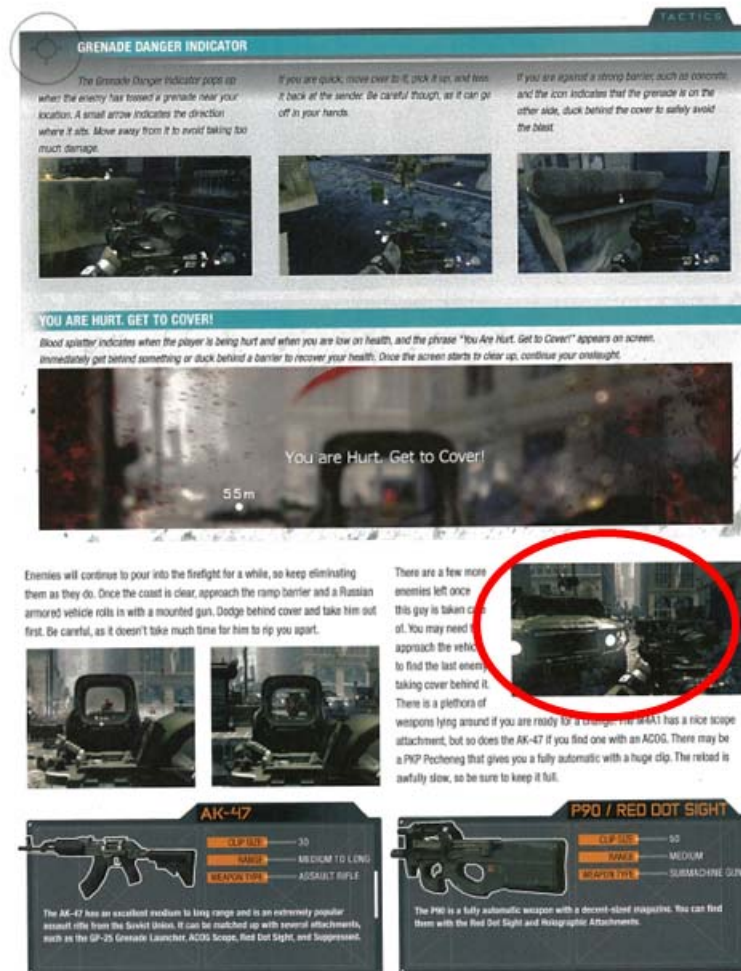

The next section has you manning a mounted turret on your Humvee as the convoy rolls through the streets. Once you get clearance to open up, don't feel shy about holding the trigger—there's no ammo limit, and you can't overheat!

“Engagement 3” is further described on page 19 (Exhibit 15 at 4) as follows:

However, this doesn't last, as the sounds of gunfire ring out ahead. Your Humvee pulls up to an abandoned school. Militants run along the rooftop in plain view, armed and firing at the convoy.

64. Similarly, the Call of Duty®: Modern Warfare® 3 strategy guide describes the various acts, missions, and other details of Call of Duty®: Modern Warfare® 3 and features Infringing Vehicles bearing the (or substantially similar) distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress. Exhibit 15 at 7–9.

65. The strategy guides described in Paragraphs 59–64, above, bear the ACTIVISION® mark and the notice “©20[xx] Activision Publishing, Inc. ACTIVISION, CALL OF DUTY and MODERN WARFARE are [registered] trademarks [or registered trademarks] [and CALL OF DUTY MW3 is a trademark] of Activision Publishing, Inc.” Exhibit 15 at 6, 10.

66. Upon information and belief, such use of the HUMVEE® mark and the distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress in connection with the manufacture, distribution, and sale of the strategy guides described in Paragraphs 59–64, above, without license or authorization from AM General, further served to promote Defendants’ Infringing Products, advertise the pervasive depiction of vehicles bearing the (or substantially similar) distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress in Defendants’ Infringing Products, and expressly mislead consumers to believe AM General or the maker of HUMVEE®-branded vehicles (if unknown) sponsors or supports Defendants’ Infringing Products.

5. Defendants’ Widespread, Pervasive, and Unauthorized Use of the HUMVEE® and HMMWV® marks and the AM General Trade Dress Is Willful, Causes Confusion, and Expressly Misleads Consumers

67. As detailed above, Defendants have misappropriated, copied and used, and continue to misappropriate, copy, and use, the AM General Trade Dress and the HUMVEE® and HMMWV® marks in connection with the Infringing Products and the advertising, promotion, and sale thereof.

68. Defendants’ use of the AM General Trade Dress and HUMVEE® and HMMWV® marks in connection with the advertising, promotion, and sale of the Infringing Products has caused and is likely to cause purchasers and potential purchasers to falsely believe that Defendants’ Infringing Products are associated with, are approved, licensed, or sponsored by AM General or the maker of HUMVEE®-branded vehicles (if unknown) or that AM General or the maker of HUMVEE®-branded vehicles (if unknown) participated in the creation of the Infringing Products or was otherwise consulted or involved with those products.

69. Defendants have distributed and continue to make available user guides for Defendants' Infringing Video Games. Such user guides include a so-called "Software License Agreement," which states to customers the following (or similar) language:

OWNERSHIP. All title, ownership rights and intellectual property rights in and to this Program and any and all copies thereof (including but not limited to any titles, computer code, themes, objects, characters, character names, stories, dialog, catch phrases, locations, concepts, artwork, animation, sounds, musical compositions, audio-visual effects, methods of operation, moral rights, and any related documentation, incorporated into this Program) are owned by Activision or its licensors.

... This Program contains certain licensed materials and Activision's licensors may protect their rights in the event of any violation of this Agreement.

Exhibit 16. Such statements are false and misleading. AM General did not license Activision's use of the HUMVEE® and HMMWV® marks and AM General Trade Dress, and Activision does not own the HUMVEE® and HMMWV® marks or AM General Trade Dress.

70. Such statements by Defendants expressly mislead customers to believe AM General or the maker of HUMVEE®-branded vehicles (if unknown) sponsors, supports, or has otherwise authorized or licensed Defendants' use of HUMVEE® and HMMWV® marks and depiction of vehicles bearing the (or substantially similar) distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress, or participated in the design of the products.

71. Upon information and belief, Defendants' misappropriation of, copying of, and use of colorable imitations of AM General's Trade Dress has been done with Defendants' knowledge of Plaintiff AM General's rights therein; with an intent to trade upon and pirate away the substantial reputation and goodwill symbolized by the AM General Trade Dress; and with an intent to cause confusion, mistake, or deception among purchasers, potential purchasers, the public, and/or the trade.

72. The foregoing activities of Defendants also demonstrate Defendants' clear and unmistakable intent to infringe AM General's marks. Defendants' use in the Infringing Products of AM General's marks has caused and is likely to cause confusion, mistake, and deception among purchasers and potential purchasers and to deceive the public into purchasing Defendants' Infringing Products and/or believing that Defendants' Infringing Products are associated with, are approved by, and/or are sponsored by AM General when that is not the case.

73. Defendants' pervasive and prominent use in the Infringing Products—in the form of video games, toys, and other content—of AM General Trade Dress and marks is designed to create the false impression that Plaintiff AM General has authorized Defendants' use. See Exhibit 16.

6. Defendants' Unauthorized Use of the HUMVEE® and HMMWV® marks and the AM General Trade Dress Is Causing and Has Caused Harm to AM General

74. Defendants' activities with respect to the Infringing Products have resulted in, are resulting in, and will continue to result in harm to AM General, including without limitation damage to Plaintiff AM General's reputation and goodwill symbolized by the AM General Trade Dress and marks as well as monetary losses and damage.

75. Upon information and belief, Defendants have wrongfully profited and have been unjustly enriched by their sales and/or licensing of the Infringing Products directly and/or contributorily.

76. Upon information and belief, Defendants' sale and/or licensing of the Infringing Products have generated substantially in excess of US $5,200,000,000.00 in revenue.

77. Upon information and belief, Defendants' sales of the Infringing Products have resulted in over 130 million units sold.

C. AM General's Knowledge of Defendants' Wrongful Conduct

78. Upon information and belief, AM General first became aware of Defendants' unauthorized use of AM General's intellectual property in or around May 2016. More specifically, on May 24, 2016, a representative of Global Icons, LLC—an outside licensing agency whose contractual duties include the policing of AM General's trademarks and trade dress—alerted counsel for AM General to the fact that Defendant Activision Blizzard, Inc. and/or Defendant Activision Publishing, Inc. ("Activision") was using depictions of vehicles bearing the (or substantially similar) distinctive elements of the AM General Trade Dress in video games and toys as part of the Call of Duty® franchise. The nature and extent of Defendants' wrongful use was at that time unknown.

79. On or about June 20, 2016, counsel for Global Icons (on behalf of AM General) sent a cease-and-desist letter to Activision. Activision and Global Icons engaged in informal communications regarding this dispute in at least August, September, and October 2016. Activision did not substantively respond until January 2017.

80. On or about January 18, 2017, Activision sent Global Icons a letter responding to the June 2016 cease-and-desist letter. Thereafter, Activision and Global Icons engaged in oral and email communications in at least March and August 2017.

81. Upon information and belief, Defendants continue to engage in unauthorized, wrongful, and misleading use of AM General's marks and trade dress.
