On July 1, 2020, the California attorney general is expected to begin enforcing the California Consumer Privacy Act (CCPA), California’s groundbreaking new privacy law which has been in effect since January 1, 2020. In addition, the attorney general is also finalizing regulations that interpret and build upon the CCPA. To minimize the risk of potentially substantial penalties, businesses should familiarize themselves with the CCPA regulations and ensure that they are prepared to comply with the new requirements.

Topics for Discussion:
- Required data collection notices
- Privacy Policies
- Financial incentives and non-discrimination
- Handling requests to know, delete or opt-out
- Special requirements for service providers, training, record-keeping, and minors

The webinar will also discuss the likely enforcement landscape, as well as the use of the CCPA in consumer class action lawsuits.

Speakers:
- Stephanie Sheridan, partner and moderator
- Michael Vatis, partner and chair of Steptoe's Privacy & Cybersecurity practice
- Daniel Podair, associate
